

The laboratory of preventive medicine

The Purpose is:

Study of primary and secondary prevention technologies, the search and development of new technologies for prevention of chronic non-infectious diseases and their risk factors. The implementation of modern preventive methods and technologies aimed at preserving and strengthening the health of the population in the activities of medical organizations of the system of practical health care.

Head of Lab.
M. D. Fomicheva M. L.

The Objectives of the Laboratory are:

1. Formation of normative and scientific-methodical base of research and scientific-practical materials on chronic non-infectious diseases prevention.
2. Organizational-methodical support of implementation of scientific development RIIPM on chronic non-infectious diseases prevention in the system of practical health care; preparation of legal documents in the field of prevention of non-infectious diseases.
3. Testing and implementation of organizational, information, diagnostic, non-drug and drug methods and preventive technologies in the field of chronic non-infectious diseases prevention into the activities of the practical health care system.
4. Implementation of effective methods of chronic non-infectious diseases secondary prevention, including the optimization of non-drug and drug treatment methods.
5. Organization, monitoring of risk factors of chronic non-infectious diseases, as well as the conduct and analysis of medical and social surveys of the population to study the prevalence of risk factors, public awareness and other aspects of chronic non-infectious diseases prevention.
6. Analysis of the prevalence level of chronic non-infectious diseases risk factors on the basis of the analysis of health and morbidity of population of the Novosibirsk region.
7. Development and implementation of educational programs on preventive medicine for health care professionals.
8. Organizational and methodological guidance and coordination of the activities of medical organizations, employees of centers for preventive medicine, health centers, departments/offices of medical prevention in the subjects of the Russian Federation on the prevention of non-infectious diseases.
9. Participation in the information and communication company on prevention of chronic non-infectious diseases and formation of a healthy lifestyle.
10. Replication of methodological materials for practical health care and population on prevention of chronic non-infectious diseases.
11. Participation in the implementation of regional programs in international and national projects on the prevention of chronic non-infectious diseases.
12. Organization and implementation of interdepartmental cooperation with medical organizations, non-medical organizations, public associations and the media on the prevention of diseases, healthy lifestyles, preservation and promotion of public health.